

An Invitation to Sponsor
NASW-MT Internal Family Systems Model<sup>SM</sup> of Psychotherapy Conference

June 8th and 9th, 2007

Richard Schwartz PhD. LMFT Presenter

Ruby's Inn and Conference Center, Missoula, Montana

About The Workshop:

The Internal Family Systems Model<sup>SM</sup> (IFS) has evolved over the past twenty years into a comprehensive approach that includes guidelines for working with individuals, couples and families. The IFS Model represents a new synthesis of two already existing paradigms: systems thinking and the multiplicity of the mind. It brings concepts and methods from the structural, strategic, narrative, and Bowenian schools of family therapy to the world of subpersonalities.

IFS is a collaborative, enjoyable, effective, and non-pathologizing form of therapy that:

- < is flexible enough to be used with any clinical problem;
- < can be used in individual, couple, family, and organizational contexts;
- < appreciates the solutions and competencies of brief therapies;
- < encourages the collaborative relationship and externalization of narrative therapy;
- < has the contextual perspective of systemic therapies;
- < respects and quickly reduces protective ecological reactions known as "resistance;"
- < is as comprehensive and sophisticated as many neo-analytic models, but is also clear and intuitively understandable;
- < provides for therapist and client abundant opportunities for creativity and wonder; and empowers clients to be able to heal themselves on their own.

About The Presenter:

Richard Schwartz, PhD, LMFT took an unexpected left turn fifteen years into his career as a family therapy clinician, historian, and educator. At a time in the early 1980's when the importance of the family system was making waves in the field of psychology, Dr. Schwartz rediscovered the rich and overlooked aspects of the psyche and gave it a grounding in systems thinking that had long been missing.

Dr. Schwartz has presented IFS material at more than 100 workshops and conducts year-long training programs in every region of the United States, as well as in Canada and Europe. He has dedicated more than 25 years of service to troubled families and individuals and remains interested in working with eating disorders, trauma, and abuse victims, as well as perpetrators of violence.

Why sponsor?

Your sponsorship helps us to bring this nationally recognized presenter to Montana. Through your sponsorship, we are able to keep the cost of this conference at a level so that many more mental health professionals can attend and increase their skills, yielding better outcomes for clinical treatment of clients.

Who is the audience?

Our conference can accommodate 150 professionals and early registrations are promising.
